

Senior Advocacy Organizations

Senior advocacy and support organizations play an important role in helping older adults live safer, healthier, and more financially secure lives. Our goals are closely aligned: providing seniors with practical information, trusted resources, and solutions that support their individual needs.

We have been asked to speak at Senior Centers to raise the awareness of the concerning issues with programs like the Equity Sharing Agreements, which are currently being promoted to older adults. We are always happy to accommodate speaking requests for Senior Centers looking for honest and objective information that seniors can benefit from. challenging

We recognize that programs like Reverse Mortgages can be very beneficial to many seniors. However, there is a significant lack of practical and objective information available on these products. We are committed to creating that resource. Not only do we want to help seniors to recognize when these products are not appropriate for them, but we want to address the misconceptions that prevent many seniors from taking advantage of these opportunities when it could really benefit them.

We are currently in the process of identifying the needs and creating additional resources to support the efforts of these senior organizations to provide education and services for the seniors in their communities. In the meantime, if you know of anyone who is connected with a Senior Advocacy Organization that could benefit from this information, please feel free to connect them with us directly.
